Green Value Paper Products

Eco-friendly and Socially Conscious Nepali Handmade Paper Products

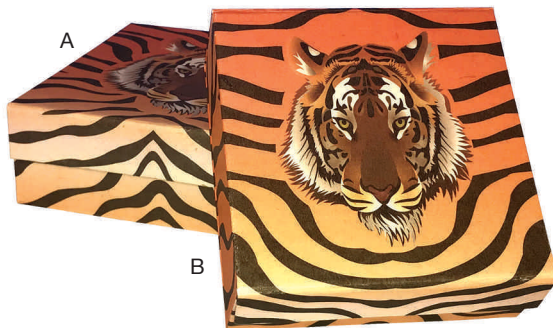

Paper, it has become an integral part of our life since it's early years of inception. Whether you use it to wrap a gift for your loved one, write your deepest thoughts in a journal, or to place a nostalgic memorabilia in a beautiful paper box; paper is part of our identity and it expresses who we are as a person. It is with this belief that Get Paper cooperative, the parent entity of Green Value Paper Products, was founded on a few decades ago. At Get Paper, we admire paper products for its innate qualities and it's overwhelming beauty – with a deep respect for the art, the people, the dedication and the social relationships that it builds between us all.

In 1982, Get Paper was founded with just 7 employees hoping to create, preserve and promote the traditional art of handmade paper making of Nepal in beautiful valley of Kathmandu. The journey started with the creation of traditional handmade products using perennial grass lokta, which is grown in high mountainous region of Nepal. However, with time we added further waste materials in the handmade production such as agriculture waste, cotton rags, waste paper, and recycled paper. Currently these recycled materials have become the major source of our paper products. At Get Paper we are not only environmentally conscious, but also socially responsible. We are focused in creating employment opportunities for women and play a major role in tackling social development issues of Nepal by advocating for girl's education and producing income generating activities for women. Get Paper, when operated at full capacity, employees as many as 500 staff members, of which 90% are women.

In order to take our products to the US market, we have established a subsidiary of Get Paper in the US: "Green Value Paper Products". While this may be our first venture in entering the US market as our own entity, Get Paper has had a long and prosperous history of supplying to the overseas market. Since 1989, Get Paper has been a Fair Trade supplier of The Body Shop International (part of the L'Oréal Group) and follows community fair trade guidelines of The Body Shop International. Apart from Body Shop International, we also supply paper to various commercial and social entities such as SERRV (USA), Oxfam (UK), and Three Sisters (Denmark) etc. We are proud to say our papers strictly adhere to the Fair Trade practices recommended by World Fair Trade Organization.

For us, handmade and recycled paper product isn't just about a product; it is about a remarkable journey that transforms waste materials into exquisite craft products. While we take pride in showcasing the origins of our paper, the raw beauty of the recycled and the waste materials, and the magnificent Himalayas where they have been collected from; what we do with these resources is just as important. For Get Paper, the journey from which we take the recycle/waste material and produce it into handmade paper product goes beyond words on a label. To us, it means having a thoughtful and intentional stewardship at every single level, from collection, to recycling, and finally the craft making process. Our small batch production is truly an art, which involves hundreds of dedicated hands, mainly of women. Our belief is that we are only as successful as our workers and our community; that is why we ensure that the rewards of our efforts trickle down to make a positive impact in Nepal. Our efforts have been validated with rigorous third-party certifications. We received 5th Artisan Recognition Award, 2009 by World Fair Trade Organization. Get Paper is an ISO 9001 certified company. Along with the quality standards, it is also an ISO 14001 certified company adhering to environmental standards.

Traditional Printing Using Screens

Another method that Get Paper applies that helps sustain the environment is the use of traditional printing screens. Majority of the products are printed using water-based ink. Water based inks do not contain PVC or phthalates and it does not need solvents to clean the screens down after they've been used. Only water is used throughout the process – from printing to cleaning and thus the process of printing is considered more environments friendly.

Anti trafficking Program

Due to extreme poverty prevalent in the Nepal, Girls trafficking, which is the acquisition of girls by improper means such as deception, force or fraud, with the goal of exploiting them to other countries, has been one of the major social problems of the country. Get Paper is working with communities to make girls aware about these trafficking threats. Girls from age 13 to 25 years from various communities are encouraged to form a support group. These girls are actively engaged in campaigning against girls trafficking in their respective areas. Currently there are 34 support groups in different communities, with 15-20 girl-members in each group.

Income Generating Programs

Since poverty is considered the root cause of girls' trafficking, Get paper believes creating awareness is not enough. The girls are also encouraged to conduct income-generating activities to empower themselves and make these support groups sustainable. The groups also run saving and credit programs. Get Paper provides these groups technical and professional training using professionals and also provides seed money to initiate income generating activities.

School Bag Distribution for Girls Education Campaign

At Get Paper, it is believed that all children deserve an education, regardless of their gender. We believe this message should be tirelessly repeated to communities until every child is attending school and no girl is left behind. With more than 1000 school bags distributed to six schools every year, children themselves are a great advocate of our powerful message of "Send Your Daughter to School", which they proudly carry on their back.

Support to Stone Breaker Community

The Stonebreaker community is one of the most marginalized communities in Nepal. This community got their name from their livelihood, as they reside near river side, collect stones and break it manually using small hammer. They then take their hard earned rubble and supply their products to the construction industry. Most of the workers who provide manual labor are women and this line of work is high intensity with very limited income. Due to the extreme level of poverty that this community faces, even their children are not spared from this manual labor and are engaged in breaking stones to get supplementary income.

School Bag – Tool to Campaign for Girls Education

As part of its awareness campaign, Get Paper distributes school bags to children in local community schools that have the message “Send Your Daughter to School” printed at the back in bright letters. Bags such as these are often seen to be a luxurious item, as families often have no means of purchasing their new school bags and children are expected to hand carry their books. Seeing a child walk around with this school bag not only helps to disseminate the powerful message to the communities and parents, but it also brings smile and great happiness to both children and parents for they are able to own an item that is of great value to them.

Educational Support to Stone Breaker Community

Get Paper knows the economic burden the Stonebreaker community faces, which often plays a huge role in the children being deprived of education. Therefore, it supports the children of this community by providing them the basic necessities, such as with scholarship, school uniforms, shoes and stationery items. It is hoped that this will free the families from financial hardship of sending their children to school and feel motivated to send their children to school. Currently Get Paper is supporting 55 children under this program.

Send Your Daughter to School Campaign

In Nepali societies, girls are still seen to be less valuable than boys. Because of this perception, girls are robbed of their basic right to attend school and attain a meaningful education. In order to help changing this harsh reality, Get Paper has created a series of initiatives to build awareness on the importance of educating girls "Send your Daughter to School" campaign is an example of its most effective endeavors.

Goat Keeping Under Anti-trafficking Program

Goat Keeping is another one of Get Paper's popular income generating activities under anti-trafficking program. Currently, we have more than 12 girls who are engaged in this program. Sunita, who belongs to Manohari girls group, is an exemplary example for the success of this program. With the right support, she has generated an annual income of Rs. 200,000 ($2,000) every year.

Education – A Tool to Break the Vicious Cycle

Get Paper started their campaign to support Stonebreaker' children and their right to education since 2004. At first the Stonebreaker community resisted this program, as sending their children to school meant a loss of working hands, thus leading to a loss of additional income. Due to this resistance, Get Paper initially started with an education program that lasted for only 2 hours. However, after continuous perseverance, awareness creation, and arrangements of more scholarships for children; parents were finally ready and happy to send their children to school.

Girls Scholarship – A Pride Program

Get Paper has focused on girls' education as one of the most important pillars of its community support program. Get Paper provides scholarships to girls to encourage them to go to school because girls are discriminated mostly due to extreme poverty faced by the families. At present, Get Paper provides 302 scholarships. It is really encouraging and gratifying to see these girls excelling once they get an opportunity to go to school.

Active in Rural Areas for Girls Education

“Send Your Daughter to School” rallies are carried out in the rural areas where girl's education is still not being accepted. Get Paper views these rallies as an opportunity for everyone in our community to get involved and support social issues. One of the biggest advocates of this rally are the girls who are heavily engaged in the anti-trafficking programs, as they find great motivation in inspiring the community and helping them understand the importance of supporting girls' education.

Environmental Awareness

Get Paper is environmentally responsible entity and strives to adopt environmental friendly techniques and practices in our operations. These methods include various recycling techniques, solar drying of the paper, using solar energy to run our office and waste water treatment. We believe it is not enough for only Get Paper to be environmentally conscious, therefore it supports the local communities by spreading awareness of the importance of caring for the environment. For this Get Paper launched its "Keep Our Community Clean" campaign for better household and community waste management which include plastics and other wastages.

Tree Plantation

Another campaign that Get paper's producers feel proud to be engaged in is 'Tree plantation' campaign that Get Paper conducts every year as part of its environmental drive. Rupa Khadka, a producer of Get Paper for six years, enthusiastically said "I feel very happy when we go for tree plantation every year. There is the sense of pride, as we believe planting trees is a way to show respect to mother earth and to our coming generation. These types of activities give my work a true meaning as we are not only working for an income but get opportunities to be socially responsible for our community for future of our children."
